WOW!'s David Brunick and Turner's Scott Porter Join CTHRA's Board of Directors

NAPERVILLE, ILL., May 14, 2018 —CTHRA, the industry's human resources (HR) association, announced that David Brunick, chief human resources officer (CHRO) for WOW!, and Scott Porter, senior vice president of HR, corporate and technology for Turner, have joined its board of directors.

Brunick (pictured top left) brings over 30 years of HR experience to the role, having served as the top executive at AT&T Broadband, MediaOne and Adelphia. He attended the University of Colorado where he earned a bachelor's degree in business and a master's degree in management and organizational development. Brunick also received a doctorate in behavioral health from Arizona State University.

He is committed to his community, with a focus on improving mental health of people in Colorado. He serves on the board of directors of Maria Droste Counseling, a mental health agency in Denver.

Porter (pictured bottom left) earned a bachelor's degree from Auburn University and a juris doctorate from Vanderbilt University School of Law. Since rejoining Turner in 2014, Porter served as co-executive sponsor of Project Core and helped transform the company's HR operations into a more accessible and adaptable model with the agility to evolve at the same pace as Turner and the media industry.

Previously, Porter served at Taylor English Duma as partner and labor and employment attorney for seven years with a client roster that included Turner and the Atlanta Braves. Prior to that, he was counsel and senior counsel for Turner's legal department. During his first tenure at Turner, 1999-2007, Porter supported CNN and other company divisions on a variety of employment related matters.

"David Brunick and Scott Porter are great additions to CTHRA's leadership, and we look forward to the valuable insight they will bring to the board of directors," shared Pamela Williams, CAE, CTHRA's executive director.
